7 Starting

As well as the excellent approaches outlined in the Godsend app and book, there is plenty of specifically Messy Church advice available to make things easier.

New initiatives are starting all the time, but a rudimentary checklist includes:

- The Messy Church website – source of many good things
- Check this page for online Messy Masterclasses on a variety of topics, including Starting Your Messy Church and join in a session.
- Contact the 'Getting Going' team to air the questions you have specific to your context. These are volunteers who have experience in running a Messy Church and are in touch with the latest developments at BRF, the home of Messy Church.
- Read Starting your Messy Church (also available in other languages) and check out the most recent resources available, such as the Get Messy! magazine, the Messy Church sessions or 'at home' free resources online. There's also a Starter Pack of resources.
- Skim through the Messy Church BRF Facebook page for ideas and community and join in one of the regular informal Facebook Live sessions on Wednesdays 9am/8pm UK time.
- Join a friendly online Messy Meet-up to meet other Messy Church leaders and share ideas and problems (details in the monthly newsletters) or a local face to face one if circumstances permit.
